Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Peter: Hey, John! So, where are you now?

John: Hi, Peter! We just left Argentina.

Peter: Where's that?

John: It's about 5,000 miles from where you are! Argentina is a coastal South American country.

Peter: Did you see any penguins? There are large colonies there!

John: Wow! How did you know?

Peter: I like to watch wildlife videos.

John: Me too! When you learn about the local wildlife, you enjoy your trip so much more, eh?

Peter: That's right! Did you take your field glasses?

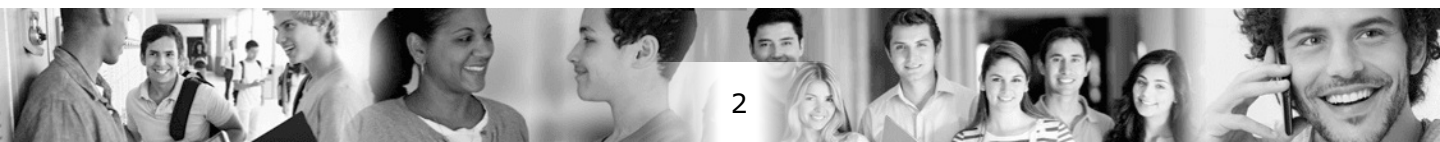

John: No, but the tourists had theirs. Tigre was peaceful - there were so many birds!

Peter: How far is Tigre from Buenos Aires?

John: It's about 20 miles from there. What's new with the gang?

Peter: Vanessa is looking for a job. Sally is in Russia, I think.

Learning Points

The Zero Conditional

You use the zero conditional to talk about general truths and certainties and to give instructions.

There are two parts to the sentence.

One part is the condition. The other part is the result. When you want to give an instruction, use the imperative in the main clause.

Form:

If or When + subject + the Simple Present Tense/Imperative

You can flip the two parts of the sentence so that the result comes first.

Subject + The Simple Present tense/Imperative + if or when + subject + the Simple Present

Condition	Result
When you learn about the local wildlife,	you enjoy your trip so much more.

Notice that you only need a comma (,) if you say the condition first.

Result	Condition
You enjoy your trip so much more	when you learn about the local wildlife.
