Let's Start!

Writing Spot: Hola! Welcome to Argentina!

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about travel and vacations in social situations.

Ask your partner:

- What do you know about Argentina?
- Where is it located?

Can Do Statements

- I can write about customs and traditions.
- I can make suggestions.
- I can ask and say how far a place is.

Let's Explore!

Listen to John's e-mail to Peter about Argentina.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Dear Peter,

How's it going at Megatech?

This week I attended El Día de la Tradición in Argentina. This festival celebrates the birth of José Hernández, a poet who is considered to be one of the greatest literary figures of the country.

I met Juan, a local, at the hotel and he suggested that I join his family in the celebrations. He and his wife live about 30 minutes from town. This week-long festival has concerts, parades, parties and great food. I even tried tango dancing with his sister ... You know I have two left feet!

Why don't you see if you can get any time off? We could meet up halfway like Colombia or something. I think it's only about a five-hour flight from here. How far is it from Cambridge? It would be cool if we can hang out in Bogota for a couple days.

Your buddy,
Johnny

Learning Points

Writing a Travel Journal

A travel journal is a collection of entries about different cities or locations.

A travel journal should be small and have a protective cover in case of spills or rain.

It should have blank areas to write your notes or add drawings.

When you write a journal, you should include:

- Who you traveled with (by yourself, with family, or with friends)
- Where you stayed and if you enjoyed it
- Who you met and their contact information
- Places to eat
- Things to see and if you would visit again

The Travel Journal and the Simple Past Tense

When you write a journal, you generally use the Simple Past tense.

You use the Simple Past tense because the actions or events you talk about in your journal are finished.

Examples:

- This week I attended El Día de la Tradición in Argentina.
- I met Juan, a local, at the hotel and he suggested that I join his family in the celebrations.
- I even tried tango dancing with his sister.
